

2014 Lecture by Keiko Takahashi

The Bold Challenge of Self-Revolution

To overcome in an era of change

The world is undergoing significant change.

Conventional values and what was thought to be common sense now waver;

Way of life and work standards are changing.

Because this is a time

When the economy and international relations are all undergoing renewal,

These changes pose a question to each of us,

In what way should we live?

What choices will you make and what will you value?

Self-Revolution is your key to overcome in an era of transition.

Profile of the Lecturer

Keiko Takahashi, born in Tokyo in 1956, explains that at the foundation of the many challenges that modern society confronts, lies a hollowing out of the human being as many have lost sight of their origin of their existence as a soul that embodies eternal life. She expounds the doctrine of the soul that introduces a way to live each day as an opportunity for developing the soul and has compiled a system of practice principles and methods that serve this purpose. The dialogues that she conducts during her lectures reveal the paths of those who have transformed themselves and their lives to make positive contributions to society, inspiring and guiding participants to affirm the existence of the soul.

Keiko Takahashi offers these studies through GLA, an association that she leads by way of seminars to address individuals across several demographics and career types. In addition, she also addresses professionals in business management, medicine, education, law, art, and other fields. Keiko Takahashi's lecture series circuit for the general public has been ongoing since its inception in 1992, with the number of attendants exceeding one million.
